

ISNM Presents an Interactive Installation in St. Petri

On June 1, 2006 the ISNM, together with Kulturstiftung Lübeck, presented an interactive installation ("Magic Table") about Luebeck's museums in the St. Petri Cathedral.

It was a great success and the school got a lot of promising feedback and proposals for future work. For example, there was a request for the development of a permanent installation at the tower top of St. Petri to attract visitors to climb to the observation platform.

Furthermore, ISNM students are invited by the Günter Grass Museum to install a permanent installation about the interdisciplinarity of artists for his 80th birthday next year.

ISNM's special thanks go to Luis Bustamante and Michal Janiszewski, both of the Class'2005, who did an extraordinary job with the development, design, installation, and presentation of the "Magic Table".

For further information please contact

Gyde Clausen

Marketing & Communication

ISNM International School of New Media

at the University of Lübeck

gyde.clausen@isnm.de